

In the mountainous regions of North Africa, agroforestry is an ancient practice that enables land to be cultivated sustainably, while preserving natural resources. Women, as key players in these systems, possess ancestral know-how. Yet their contribution is often downplayed, and they face challenges such as land insecurity and economic dependence. In this webinar, we will look at how agroecology can be a catalyst for their recognition, socio-economic integration and collective resilience.

This webinar is organised as part of the NATAE project and the MEDAE network (MEDiterranean multiactor network on AgroEcology)

AGENDA

www.natae-agroecology.eu

natae@cariassociation.org

This project is funded by the European Union under the Grant Agreement no. 101084647. Associated Partners in NATAE project are supported by financial contributions of the Government of Switzerland.

Schweizerische Eidgenossenschaft Confédération suisse Confederazione Svizzera Confederaziun svizra

Swiss Confederation

Federal Department of Economic Affairs, Education and Research EAER State Secretariat for Education, Research and Innovation SERI

